

How to use Dawsonera ebooks

Queen's has purchased a small number of e-books where titles which are likely to be in heavy demand for particular modules are available in the e-format on the Dawsonera platform.

Links are available from the library catalogue. When available, a hotlink to the e-book can be found within the Detailed Display of the catalogue record.

e.g. The cathedral church of Hereford / A. Hugh Fisher

Alternatively, go to the Dawsonera homepage at: <http://www.dawsonera.com/>.

Logging in

If you are on site at Queen's, you will not need to log in to read the book online, but you will need to log in if you wish to print, copy, or make notes on the text. To log in, click on the Sign in or My Account tab.

Ignore the reference to Shibboleth and Athens, and enter your username and password in the Direct Login box. You may change your password if you wish.

The e-book catalogue

E-books available to Queen's students are listed under the eBook Catalogue tab. You can search the content of these books via the Advanced Search tab.

Read online

To read online, click on the Read online icon.

You can browse through the text one page at a time, or via the Table of Contents, or by going directly to a particular page. You can also search the text by keyword.

Other options include printing, copying and making notes. The publisher determines how much of the text you can print or copy, so it may vary, but you will be able to print or copy at least 5%. That is 5% per user per book in a 12 month period.

Download

To download a PDF copy of the book, click on the Download icon. Note that there is only one option for the length of the loan – one day – but don't worry, you can download the file again if you need to. The reason that you can only download the file for 24 hours at a time is that we are charged for every 24 hour period, and we don't want to waste them.

You can browse through the text one page at a time, or by going directly to a particular page. You can also search the text by keyword by selecting Find from the Edit menu. But you cannot print or copy.
